

Eldorado on 1st Completes Construction

North American Development Group (NADG) and the team at AZarchitecture/Jarson & Jarson Real Estate, along with renowned local architect Will Bruder, announce the completion of Eldorado on 1st. The project consists of seven adjacent city homes located at 6901 East 1st Street in Scottsdale.

NADG's Chris Chamberlain is extremely proud of the project and expressed his gratitude to Will Bruder and his team saying "it was an incredible journey to work alongside a Valley icon in the design, building and completion of this unique project."

The three remaining luxury residences at the four-story project start at $1,739,000 and include the highest quality materials, state-of-the-art custom bulthaup b3 kitchens, private rooftop terraces and a range of carefully selected finishes designed to complement Bruder's innovative architectural style. The community also features a custom art installation by artist Jay Atherton entitled "Four Points for Contemplation."

"Eldorado on 1st is a new level of urban sophistication for downtown Scottsdale," says Bruder. "Our residents will benefit from the close ties to the local arts community and proximity to countless dining, cultural and entertainment amenities available throughout the area."

A furnished model is now open for potential residents to experience the homes. Visit the Eldorado on 1st Sales Center at the offices of AZarchitecture/Jarson & Jarson Real Estate at 3707 N. Marshall Way, Unit 5, in Scottsdale. The Sales Center is open Monday through Saturday, with presentations by appointment. Scott Jarson is Director of Sales for the project.
